

N. Viets Moving Forward

SAIGON (AP) — North Vietnam's dry season offensive has scored major gains in both northern and southern Laos, sources in Vientiane reported today.

Ten Laotian battalions retreated today from the village of Ban Nhek, in the south after a two-hour battle that broke an enemy siege, but the retreat left the entire Bolovens plateau to the North Vietnamese.

In the north, Laotian troops were driven from Phou Cum, 25 miles north of the Plain of Jars, and Sam Thong, southwest of the plain, while the North Vietnamese kept up their pressure on Long Cheng, the former U.S. Central Intelligence Agency base.

The Laotian troops broke out of Ban Nhek, about 17 miles east of Pakse, after other army units launched a diversionary operation. About 200 Laotian soldiers were killed, wounded or missing, informed sources said.

North Vietnamese casualties were not reported.

The North Vietnamese outflanked the Laotians Sunday night and pounded them with artillery and mortar shells, firing more than 1,000 rounds in one 5½-hour period Monday. The source said the North Vietnamese used "hugging tactics," sticking so close to the village that U.S. and Laotian air strikes could not hit the North Vietnamese without causing casualties to the Laotians.

The loss of Phou Cum on the northern front left Bouam Long, 15 miles to the southeast, the only government outpost north of the Plain of Jars.

Field reports said government forces abandoned Phou Cum after an artillery and ground attack, and an estimated 3,000 to 4,000 civilians began a 50-mile trek through enemy-controlled mountains to reach the nearest government territory.

Sam Thong, once a major refugee center, was abandoned Monday afternoon after a heavy artillery barrage, but Thai troops continued to hold Fire Base Thunder two miles to the east, sources in Vientiane said.

Military sources said Sam Thong was attacked from the west and this indicated the North Vietnamese were trying to encircle Long Cheng, 6 miles to the southwest.

Semi-official sources in the Laotian capital said Long Cheng technically has not fallen to the enemy but is no longer serving its original functions as a base for CIA operations and for Gen. Vang Pao's army of Meo tribesmen.

The U.S. Command in Saigon announced that North Vietnam has moved surface-to-air missile batteries into southern Laos for the first time in nine months and one of them fired unsuccessfully twice at an American fighter-bomber Monday.

The American pilot did not return the fire because he could not pinpoint the missile battery in the thick jungle.

The U.S. Command also reported the fourth American air strike inside North Vietnam this year, an attack Monday night on an anti-aircraft radar site in the Ban Karai pass, 35 miles north of the demilitarized zone. A communiqué said the site apparently was destroyed by two Shrike missiles fired by an Air Force F105 fighter escort. There was no damage to the U.S. aircraft, the command said.

The South Vietnamese command in Saigon reported an upsurge in fighting in South Vietnam, with 26 enemy attacks, the most in 2½ weeks. One Viet Cong attack overran an outpost in the Mekong Delta, killing seven of the defenders and wounding 16.

Fantastic Details Revealed on Mars

PASADENA, Calif. (AP) — The haze that has hidden Mars since late September and threatened Mariner 9 with failure is rapidly clearing.

Scientists say the orbiting spacecraft's television cameras are returning striking photographs that show strange, unexplained features.

"The photographs are showing us a fantastic range of brand new phenomena that no one ever suspected existed on Mars. Every day something new is turning up in the photographs," Dr. Carl Sagan, an astronomer from Cornell University working on the Mariner 9 project said Monday.

The photographs have shown towering ridges and canyons "grander than the Grand Canyon." One such canyon appears to be 6 to 12 miles across and perhaps more than a mile deep, the scientists report.

Council May Publish Names

Wage-Price Violators May Face New Punishment

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Cost of Living Council says it will start disclosing the names of violators of wage-price controls, and a congressman has hinted his committee may investigate current policy unless additional action is taken to protect consumers.

Council Director Donald Rumsfeld said Monday the new disclosure policy includes the possibility that results of council investigations may be given to persons who file complaints against excessive price and wage increases.

Names of violators have been automatically withheld unless the government went to court to force compliance with wage-price guidelines. The government also continually has said consumers are not entitled to see business records that contain justification for price hikes. The council did not say whether companies will be required to disclose that information according to the new policy.

Rep. Wright Patman, chairman of the House Banking Committee, meanwhile asked the Price Commission and Pay Board to detail how they have complied with congressional mandates in the new laws. The Texas Democrat said he is particularly interested in those pertaining to the handling of retroactive pay hikes and those on the rights of consumers.

In letters Monday to the chairmen of both control agencies, Patman said his panel might hold hearings to see if conditions written into the legislation extending President Nixon's economic-control powers are being met.

One provision is that previously negotiated pay raises caught in the initial 90-day wage-price freeze are to be paid if prices were increased to cover them, unless they are inconsistent with inflation fighting standards.

Secretary of Labor James D. Hodgson today urged federal mediators to watch out for attempts to get around wage controls.

"Both the future of collective bargaining and the controls program are ill-served by such mischief, and we should not be reticent in saying so," the secretary said in remarks for the annual seminar of the Federal Mediation and Conciliation Service.

Hodgson also told the mediators, who sit in when requested on difficult labor-management bargaining sessions to help toward a settlement, that they should discourage management bargainers from agreeing to a big wage increase because they think the board will reject it.

"There is the case, and I know this has happened, when one of the parties says, 'Let's not knock ourselves out. The settlement may be a bad one, but let's agree to it anyway and then let the Pay Board knock it down,'" Hodgson said.

Meanwhile, the Price Commission told insurance companies they must reduce by 37.5 per cent the portion of any new rate hike.

Compensation Issue Before Legislature

BULLETIN

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP) — Two labor oriented senators delayed quick action in the Missouri Senate today on an emergency unemployment compensation bill.

First Sens. Robert A. Young, D-St. Ann, and Edward T. Linehan, D-St. Louis, filibustered for more than an hour on a motion to advance the bill to position for passage. It marked the first big fight of the new 1972 legislative session.

As the noon hour approached, Young then offered a substitute to the bill intended to comply with federal requirements.

Linehan objected to approval of the Monday Senate Journal, which shied the bill approved by committee and reported in for floor action with 18 senators present at an unusual night session.

The Senate ignored that protest and approved the journal by a voice vote. Linehan's "no" was the only negative vote heard.

The Senate committee wasted no time in reporting the bill favorably Monday night.

But the full Senate, which held its journal open for the committee action, still had to go through the touch-and-go motions to accept the bill for debate Tuesday.

Sen. Edward Linehan, D-St. Louis, insisted on a roll call vote to determine if a quorum was present in the chamber shortly after the committee disbanded.

A quick head count by observers indicated only 17 senators were on the floor at the time, because Linehan promptly left the chamber as soon as he made the motion.

But Sen. Jack Gant, D-Independence, entered by another entrance and made the necessary 18th senator.

See 11 Contenders For State Primary

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

As Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey began campaigning in Florida for the presidency, he and 11 other Democrats were nominated today for the state's March 14 primary ballot.

The list also included Alabama Gov. George C. Wallace and Sen. Edward M. Kennedy. A spokesman for Kennedy said the Massachusetts senator would take the necessary steps to have his name removed from the ballot, however.

Florida Secretary of State Richard Stone also nominated three Republicans for the primary—President Nixon and Reps. Paul N. McCloskey Jr., of California and John Ashbrook of Ohio, all declared candidates.

The other Democrats listed were Sens. Vance Hartke of Indiana, Henry M. Jackson of Washington, George S. McGovern of South Dakota and Edmund S. Muskie of Maine; Reps. Shirley Chisholm of New York and Wilbur D. Mills of Arkansas; Mayors John V. Lindsay of New York and Sam Yorty of Los Angeles; and former Sen. Eugene J. McCarthy of Minnesota.

Humphrey jumped into the Florida campaigning after announcing his candidacy Monday in Philadelphia. He said he was declaring his freedom from the burdens he carried in his last bid for the presidency.

"I am prepared to take this campaign directly to the people, carrying no one else's burdens," the Minnesota Democrat said Monday in Tallahassee, Fla., as he began campaigning in Florida's March 14 presidential primary.

"The people of this state will be the first to judge my fitness for the high office that I seek," said the 60-year-old senator who, while vice president in the Lyndon B. Johnson administration, lost the presidency to Richard M. Nixon four years ago.

Earlier in the day Humphrey was in Philadelphia where he entered the April 25 Pennsylvania primary.

Says Union Claim False

Ernest Ipock, Springfield, vice-president for Pennco, Inc., the contractors for a building being erected for the proposed Sutherland Lumber Co., on East Broadway, Tuesday termed information carried by a picket at the site Monday as false.

Lyman Lyne, LaMonte, carried a sign at the construction site which read: "Pennco, Inc., is breaking down wages and working conditions as established in this area." The sign also bore the title of Iron Workers L.U. 10, AFL-CIO, Kansas City.

Ipock said he spoke with union officials in a meeting in Kansas City Monday afternoon, but said nothing was accomplished. He said the union could not explain why the picket was at the construction site.

However, he said, "Representatives of Local 10 who approached me on the job informed me I could not personally work on my own job and this is the only reason I can see why the picket was there."

Ipock said he was "paying the wage scale in this area that they asked me to pay, plus the fringe benefits attached to it." He termed the accusation that he was "breaking down" wages as false.

He also said that in his meeting with union officials, neither terms nor agreements were discussed or reached. He added, however, that the picket was removed following the meeting.

According to Ipock, work was stopped at the site all day Monday. Pennco is erecting an office and warehouse building for the lumber company. Ipock said the $39,000 Star Metal Building should be completed by early spring.

Four black men lie handcuffed under the marquee of the Temple theater in east Baton Rouge, La., Monday afternoon following a violent encounter of Black

Decide Shootout Blame

By TOM JORY and G. MICHAEL HARMON Associated Press Writers

BATON ROUGE, La. (AP) — Mayor W. W. Dumas blames Black Muslims in part for a street gunfight between law enforcement officers and blacks which left four men dead. Seven young Muslims deny their organization was involved.

A spokesman for the NAACP says he isn't sure who was involved in shooting which erupted Monday after police moved in to clear a city street of an impromptu rally at which militants were calling for improved conditions in the city's black community.

Gov. John McKeithen blamed the burst of gunfire on a downtown street two miles from Louisiana's capitol on "outsiders."

And Sheriff's Detective Capt. Bryan Clemmons Jr. says "some sort of suicide plot" might have been involved in the shootout which took the lives of two deputies and two blacks.

Twenty blacks were arrested and charged with disturbing the peace after the afternoon shoot-out and eight of the 20 were later charged with murder in the deaths of the two deputies.

Some 25 persons were treated for injuries, including Baton Rouge Police Chief Eddie Bauer.

Four hundred National Guard troops were called to duty to bolster local and state police in enforcing a dusk to dawn curfew. Bars and grocery stores were ordered closed.

"We have every reason to believe this is a national movement by the Muslims," Dumas said. "The information we get is that this isn't just local."

McKeithen said the city was aware of what he called the outsiders.

"Mayor Dumas called me Monday morning and warned me there could be trouble," McKeithen said, "but he thought they would come to City Hall and talk to him."

The seven young men who disclaimed Muslim involvement did so in a statement handed to newsmen after the shooting.

They said they were members of the Black Muslim movement in Baton Rouge, but they were not identified.

They said the blacks who fought with police apparently were renegades who called themselves Muslims.

Harvey Britton, field director of the Louisiana NAACP, said, "We don't know that there are Black Muslims involved. Or if it is an out-of-town or fractional group. We don't know if it was the Muslims or the NAACP or anyone else."

In speaking of a possible suicide plot, Clemmons said: "From what we get on the streets, they told people to bring your friends to a meeting Monday and they told them to tell a policeman and you'll see something you've never seen before. So we don't know."

When police arrived at the scene of the rally which had drawn some 100 persons, Bauer said, a group of 18 blacks stood shoulder to shoulder in front of a wall of cars blocking the street.

"They were lined up like a little bunch of tin soldiers, like they wanted us to come up and talk to them," Clemmons said.

"Something was said that they wanted to talk and that's when Maj. Fred Dummigan and Maj. Fred Sliman went up to talk to them. It wasn't but a second when they were jumped," he said.

"There was a lot of struggling and then this one black pulled a gun and there was some gunfire ... and police fired. Then there was more shooting."

Henry Baptiste, a black cameraman for television station WBRZ, said "five or six blacks" fired from between buildings and from alleys with pistols and shotguns.

The blacks opened fire, Baptiste said, when police arrived to move the cars barricading the streets.

Of those standing in the street, Clemmons said, only one he saw was armed and other blacks disarmed approaching policemen.

More heavily armed city and parish (county) police blocked off the area by encircling the block containing the theater.

Police moved through the area after the shooting stopped and routed blacks from buildings.

During the night, National Guard troops were posted at all gun shops and police stopped every moving car.

Three men were arrested when a group of policemen said they had been fired upon. Henry Harris, 24, of Baton Rouge was charged with attempted murder and two others with him in a car were charged with curfew violations.

Police said they recovered a .22-caliber pistol and ammunition from the Harris car.

About two dozen persons were arrested for curfew violations.

The dead deputies were identified as Ralph Hancock, 30, and Ralph Dewayne Wilden, 27, both white.

One slain black man was identified as Thomas Davis, 25, of Chicago. The other carried no identification.

The eight charged with murder were identified as Lawrence Brooks, 25, Baton Rouge; Raymond Eames, 21, Baton Rouge; Robert J. Barber, 20, Los Angeles; David McKinney, 22, Chicago; Toussaint L'Overture, 21, Chicago; Clendon Brown, 25, Chicago; Warren Hall, 25, Philadelphia, and Ridgley Williams Jr., who refused to give police his age or home town.

Name Contractor Finance Chairman

ST. LOUIS (AP) — A St. Louis area contractor, Alfred J. Fleischer was named Monday as finance chairman of the Missouri Republican Party.

He was named to the post by leaders of the State Republican Committee, succeeding Donald L. Wolfsberger, who resigned last July.

Fleischer, 56, headed the Volunteers for Danforth in St. Louis County in 1970, when Missouri Atty. Gen. John C. Danforth made his unsuccessful bid for the U.S. Senate.

Ramada Inn Progress Detailed

Construction on the new Ramada Inn, located west of the Thompson Hills Shopping Center, is progressing on schedule and the building should be completed in late April, Richard D. Dean, contractor and stockholder in the new venture, told members of the Sedalia Rotary Club at their regular meeting Monday noon at Hotel Bothwell.

Site preparation was commenced in March of last year, and actual building construction was started in August.

The new facility, situated on an eight acre tract, will have 122 units, including five two-room suites and six rooms with special display areas for salespeople. A large meeting room, which will seat 450 to 500 people, may be broken down with dividers to take care of up to five smaller meetings. This area will have multizone heating and cooling so guests may be comfortable regardless of the size group in each of the meeting rooms, or atmospheric conditions, Dean reported.

An option on an additional five acres to the south of the original eight acres is held by the Ramada Inn group so that expansion can be accomplished if needed in the future. A swimming pool is in the plans and will be constructed after the building is completed, the speaker noted.

Charles Hofheins, general program chairman, arranged for the program and introduced the speaker.

By unanimous vote the club membership voted to purchase a new aspirator for Buena Vista Home. The need was made known to the club by Robert Phillips, chairman of the Rotary Project Fund.

In other club action, Donald S. Barnes, president, announced the appointment of Aubrey Case, J. O. Latimer and Dr. Stanley Fisher, the last three past club presidents, as the nominating committee for officers for the new Rotary year which will start July 1. The election of officers will be held on Feb. 21. Barnes reported the early election will be held so those elected may attend the district Rotary conference to be held in Warrensburg the first week in March.

Guests presented by Richard Lehner were Jarold M. Young, a Carthage Rotarian; Dan Peterson, Chicago, with Ken Swanson, Ken Schreiner, Sedalia, with LeRoy Iuchs; and student guests Al Meives and Stan Jarvis, from Sacred Heart High School; and Steve Emory, Smith-Cotton High School.

Say 22 Counties Have Bond Sponsors

The "Kit Bond for Governor Steering Committee" has announced that clubs in 22 counties have been set up to spark the yet-unannounced candidacy of the state auditor for the Republican nomination for Missouri governor.

Among the counties already showing interest in Bond are Cooper, Johnson and Pettis Counties. Chairmen for the Bond drive in these areas are Paul Sombart, Boonville; Dale Heidel, Warrensburg; and Ronald L. Jones, Southern Hills.

Changes Related To Business

By JOHN CUNIFF AP Business Analyst

NEW YORK (AP) — Relating social change to business developments:

Not long ago an anti-establishment person could do his thing by spending a few dollars for a safe-deposit bank into which he deposited a dead fish.

The game has now become deadlier, as demonstrated by the finding of time bombs in bank deposit boxes in New York, Chicago and San Francisco. Only one of the bombs exploded, but the incidents did prove how defenseless are the banks.

In renting safe-deposit boxes, banks are in effect renting away not only space but their authority. In payment for a few dollars they give up their rights to the box. What lays hidden within is secret.

Even if they suspect that the law is being violated or that their safety is endangered, they may have a difficult time proving so. The rules on opening boxes are strict; the liability involved is enormous.

The National Safe Deposit Association states that without the proper court papers a bank cannot protect itself no matter how many competent witnesses it has present.

The net effect is to make some banks question the value to them of offering at any price a piece of their property.

There may be little agreement today on the role of business in society. It is changing, on that there is agreement. But is the change to be completed in a few years or will business be seeking its new role for years to come?

One indication that the latter possibility is more likely is publication of a scholarly new journal called "Business Society Review," which says its pages are "devoted exclusively to exploring the role of business in a free society."

Founders of the publication, Warren, Gorham & Lamont, Inc., of Boston, are same ones who since 1846 have been publishing the influential "The Bankers Magazine."

In the first issue, Paul Samuelson, Noble Prize economist, predicts that "in the years ahead, the so-called private corporation will find itself subjected to external constraints never dreamed of at Harvard Business School."

J. Kenneth Galbraith maintains that the constraints should be so inclusive that large companies should be publicly owned, not in sense that the public owns shares but that the government controls them.

And Milton Friedman detects a suicidal instinct in the tendency to burden corporations with broad social responsibilities. "Nothing," he says, "would destroy the private enterprise system more than a real acceptance of this doctrine of social responsibility."

The new journal promises to keep its pages open to thoughtful material on every side of the controversy.

Suspect Sabotage In Vessel's Death

HONG KONG (AP) — Suspicions of sabotage in the Queen Elizabeth fire mounted today, but Hong Kong's fire chief said he had no evidence to support the speculation.

The South China Morning Post said an official of the company that owned the former luxury liner reported the fire broke out simultaneously Sunday in four different locations. The official, W. S. Pau, marine superintendent for shipping magnate, C. Y. Tung's Island Navigation Corp., could not be reached for confirmation of the report, and another company officer, C. S. Wang, denied it.

The Elizabeth's last British master, Commodore Geoffrey Marr, said in London on Monday that the flames spread too quickly to have started accidentally, "it must have been sabotage."

The Hong Kong fire services chief, Harry Wood, told a news conference he had no evidence to support speculation the fire was started deliberately and he had "no idea where or how the fire started."

The fire chief said he was surprised at the intensity of the fire when firemen were called in. But he added that he had never known a big passenger liner to be saved after fire gained a firm hold.

Wood said firemen who were able to board the ship for a short time were confined to a small area. He said he did not know if the fireproof doors were closed, but a sprinkler system in the area was not working.

The 83,000-ton ship rolled over on her starboard side Monday in 50 feet of water near Tsing Yi Island, at the western outskirts of Hong Kong harbor. Approximately half the ship was above the surface, and the fire still burned inside the hull.

The Queen Elizabeth was the world's largest passenger liner and the flagship of the Cunard Line until her age and airline competition retired her in 1968. After the failure of attempts to establish her in the United States as a floating hotel and convention center, Tung bought her, renamed her the Seawise University and was converting her into a floating campus for Chapman College of Orange, Calif.

Landmark Noted In Shop Opening

KANSAS CITY (AP) — A man who has demonstrated his ability to participate in the free enterprise system is opening a shoe repair shop for the 5,500 employees of the Federal Building in downtown Kansas City.

The program is part of a plan to give minority businesses a home in government-owned buildings.

Clarence L. Moten will have the first minority business in a Government Services Administration-run building in the 4-state region of Missouri, Kansas, Iowa and Nebraska.

The government hopes to draw at least 208 small business minority enterprises in the U.S. into government buildings.

Moten, for one, is sure his shop will succeed, even though he has to earn almost $50 a day to stay in business.

"This seems like a good opportunity," says Moten, who operates another shop in the mid-town section of the city.

C. I. Moyer, regional director for the Small Business Administration, says Moten got the slot in the government building because of his past record of achievement "in the free enterprise system."

Ann Landers

Humble Apologies To Richard Armour

Dear Readers: This time the wet noodle won't do. I deserve ten well-aimed spurts from a ketchup bottle. Here's my story:

Recently I printed a poem that Ogden Nash had written about Ann Landers shortly before he died. I expressed my gratitude and said I was sorry I had never met Mr. Nash. I also said, "The Ogden Nash poem I've repeated most often is this:

"When you hit the ketchup bottle
None comes out
And then a little."

Within three days I received letters from all over the country informing me that the poem was written not by Ogden Nash but by Richard Armour. Unconvinced, I asked my critics to prove it. The following day I received plenty of proof — a letter from Richard Armour. Dateline: Caremont, California.

Mr. Armour informed me that he was, indeed, the author of "The Ketchup Bottle." What's more he said, "I am not very proud of that poem and you have done Ogden Nash no favor by saddling him with it." Furthermore, Mr. Armour said I had murdered his language, and would I please get it right.

"Shake and shake the catsup bottle.
None will come and then a lot'll."

Mr. Armour made me feel better by saying other prominent people had made the same mistake — Hugh Downs and Edwin Newman for example. So, my humble apologies to Richard Armour. It helps to know I'm in good company.

Dear Ann Landers: A group of us were discussing a new book written by a young married couple which presents a strong case against having children. As a mother who has had a lot of trouble with two teen-agers I kept quiet, but I agreed with the young authors. Since I am not signing this letter I can tell you that if it weren't for our kids my husband and I would have had a beautiful life together.

The book insists that motherhood is not instinctive, but an act of selfishness — that most parents have children because they want the kids to do something for THEM, and not because they want to do something for the kids. Another point: Women become pregnant to get attention — a nine-month ego trip. The pregnant woman is waited on, pampered, and treated as if she were a Dresden doll.

Other reasons for having children were listed and in them I saw myself and my friends. Examples: (1) Pressure from the folks. ("Make us grandparents already.") (2) Proof of masculinity. (3) Parenthood gives adults the right to boss somebody around. (4) Couples sometimes feel their marriage is falling apart and they hope children will help keep it together. All in all, the book made plenty of sense. Will you comment, please? — Mrs. No Name

Dear Mrs.: I agree that couples who are immature and unstable are better off without children. I do not agree, however, that pregnancy is a nine-month ego trip — especially for women who threw up a lot. Although I haven't read the book, I believe couples who decide NOT to have children for whatever reason, owe no apologies and no explanations to anyone. It's their business.

What awaits you on the other side of the marriage veil? How can you be sure your marriage will work? Read Ann Landers' booklet "Marriage — What To Expect." Send your request to Ann Landers in care of your newspaper enclosing 50c in coin and a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Pupils Enjoy Weather

Monday's sunny weather was a welcome change from some of the cold, overcast days of the previous week. Here, third and fourth graders of Horace Mann School take advantage of the bright outdoors with a game of touch football on the school playgrounds. Among other signs of the dry, sunny day were more pedestrians on Sedalia's streets who were in no hurry to get indoors and automobiles lining up at car-wash stations. (Democrat-Capitol Photo)

Irish Women on Battlefield

BELFAST, Northern Ireland (AP) — Two women ran screaming for the safety of a doorway, clutching each other in terror as gunfire erupted in the Ardoyne, a Belfast flashpoint district in the communal violence of Northern Ireland.

One was a Protestant, the other a Roman Catholic. A few minutes later they had become friends.

"Bullets don't discriminate," explained Winifred Matill, a Protestant from the Woodvale district.

Women of both religions have fought in the front line as Protestants battle Catholics in this deeply divided British province. Some have fought the British troops sent in to keep the two communities apart.

They have fought, grimly and with remarkable resilience, for 2½ years just to survive and keep their families going while snipers' bullets whine and guerrilla bombs blast homes, movie theaters and stores.

Yet there is hope that women from the two communities may play a leading role in restoring peace and sanity to Ulster.

Protestants and Catholics by the hundred have joined the Women Together Organization, founded nearly a year ago to try and establish communications between women of the two communities.

"There is all around us a great desire for peace and a weariness of violence, but also a sense of helplessness and despair in the face of it," said Monica Patterson, a Protestant and chairwoman of the association.

It has been carrying on a massive advertising campaign and a concentrated drive among women in the troubled areas. Its weakness is that its members are mainly middle-class women from both communities. It has yet to reach working-class women in the Catholic districts where no Protestant women would dare to attend a meeting.

Terrorist bombers have failed to halt the housewives going about their occupations. Department stores have been bombed but still the women hunt for bargains.

Anne Peskett, a 45-year-old Protestant from the Ormeau district, said: "At first we had a fear of going downtown. Slowly, you realize it is essential to live as normally as possible. So you take your chance."

Shop girls, too, have shown remarkable courage. "You have three minutes to get out," the warning shouted by guerrilla bombers when they deposit their suitcase bombs, is almost a daily occurrence in Belfast, Londonderry, Armagh and elsewhere.

When the smoke of the explosion raises or the "all clear" sounds after a bomb hoax, the girls are soon back on the job, clearing the rubble or back behind the counter or desk.

Hospital authorities reckon several hundred women have been injured in the strife and turmoil, most of them suffering from shock, bruises and cuts from flying glass.

Twenty women, including some young girls, have died from guerrilla bullets or army gunfire.

Doctors report a big increase in nervous disorders among women.

"We write prescription after prescription for tranquilizer pills. The strain and tension are beginning to tell," said one physician in a working class district of East Belfast.

Claim Medical Deductions

By RAY DE CRANE

Almost everyone who itemizes his deductions should be able to claim a medical deduction.

One-half of the cost of medical insurance premiums (to a limit of $150) are immediately deductible as a medical expense. This could include the cost of Blue Cross, Blue Shield, private medical and health insurance, and for those over 65, the cost of the Medicare deductions from their Social Security checks.

For all other medical expenses, no deduction is permitted until the total of such expenses exceeds 3 per cent of adjusted gross income. Then the deduction is the excess over the 3 per cent figure.

Whenever you itemize your medical deductions always be sure to include the remainder of your health insurance premiums which was not immediately deductible.

Medicines and drugs are included in your tabulation to the extent their cost exceeds one per cent of adjusted gross income.

Movie Ban Order

BUFFALO, Mo. (AP) — A temporary restraining order has been issued in this Dallas County community against the showing of the motion picture "Beyond the Valley of the Dolls."

Circuit Court Judge Charles V. Barker signed the order Monday at the request of Buffalo Mayor Jess Stafford after Theodore G. Scott, city and county prosecuting attorney, declined to make a recommendation.

The restraining order was issued in support of Stafford's contention that the film is objectionable.

"The Last Tribes of Mindanao"

Stone age men come into the 20th century in this fascinating television show that reveals the existence of a lost tribe discovered only last year in the rain forests of the Philippine Island of Mindanao.

National Geographic cameramen were on hand when this important and astonishing discovery was made of a people who knew nothing of any aspect of the modern world or other men. As you will see on this show, the Tasaday tribe, leading lives typical of prehistoric men, didn't even know of the existence of the sea even though they and their ancestors, thousands of years before them, have lived on an island.

Don't miss this one-in-a-million television show.

Launcher Offered

WASHINGTON (AP) — In what it bills as the "biggest sale of this magnitude ever offered to the public, the National Aeronautics and Space Administration is offering two gigantic missile-launch complexes at Cape Kennedy.

Included are launch complex 34, scene of the Apollo spacecraft fire in which three astronauts were killed, and complex 37 from which the first U.S. spacecraft carrying three men, Apollo 7, was launched on its earth orbital mission of almost 11 days.

The two complexes, which cost about $58 million to build, are being offered as one lot only.

The General Services Administration, in charge of the offering, said NASA was making the sale "in a move to bring greater efficiency in manned launches."

A NASA spokesman said the pads were kept in readiness for additional launches for some time after their usefulness ended, but maintenance has become extremely difficult.

The property being sold includes: —Five towers, ranging in height from 240 to 381 feet and weighing about 9,000 tons.

—Thousands of feet of stainless steel and aluminum lines, tubes, pipe and flexible hose.

—About 4,000 feet of 36-inch water line and 185 miles of copper and stainless steel cable. —Cranes, elevators, winches, hoists, motors and "other valuable property."

Busy Evening Is Ahead For Group

Regaining the triple-A rating for the Sedalia public school system, the possibility of increased vocational education, a comparison of tax rates in other communities and the recommendation for a principal at the new junior high school will just be some of the topics to come up for consideration in the regular monthly meeting of the Sedalia Board of Education at 7:30 o'clock tonight.

Superintendent of Schools Dr. T. J. Norris said a number of representatives from the State Department of Education will be at the meeting to explain the necessary steps which must be taken for the school system to regain its triple-A rating, which was lost last year.

A special committee of the board of education will present recommendations at the meeting to increase the scope of vocational training in Smith-Cotton High School. Dr. Norris said the recommendations came after several months of study on the need for such a vocational program here.

As part of the increased vocational prospects, a pre-enrollment plan was carried out at Smith-Cotton High School and completed last Friday. Norris said a survey was taken to find out student interest in an increased vocational education. Pre-enrollment figures will be released at the board meeting.

Combined with a request by Norris to the board for setting the tax rate at the meeting, a compilation of information on tax rates in other similar-sized communities will be released. Norris said the tax rate survey included communities with a population of at least 5,000 persons. The comparative figures were assembled by Norris.

To avert last-minute problems about insurance for school property, Norris said he will ask the board to make an early decision. Insurance for the school system has to be renewed by May 25.

The bids for insurance last year were sent out late, according to Norris. He said that less confusion would result if the bids were sent out earlier.

Other matters to be placed before the board will be the name of an individual to become principal at the new junior high school and the acceptance of bids for new equipment.

Introduce Measure On State Gas Tax

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP) — Two members of the Missouri House today introduced a bill increasing the state gasoline tax from 5 cents a gallon to 7 cents.

Gov. Warren E. Hearnes vetoed such legislation last May 17 because, he said, it was not tied to a highway construction bond issue as he wanted.

This time the bill was offered by Reps. Robert Devoy, D-Brookfield, and Richard DeCoster, D-Canton.

Licensing of vocations prompted the introduction of two bills today.

Vandalism Reports For Local Police

Several cases of vandalism were reported to Sedalia police Monday night and early Tuesday morning.

The acts included two mailboxes that were tampered with. Mrs. Mary Dilthey, 2401 Dennis Road, reported her mailbox was "wrecked" sometime Sunday night, while Mrs. Bonnie Scott, 2306 West 11th, reported Monday a mailman found her mailbox torn off its mounting and under some bushes in her yard.

Charles Ramseyer called police early Tuesday morning and reported someone was shooting at his house on the State Fair Grounds. Officers investigated and found someone had thrown a rock through a double window on the second floor of the building. The officers also found holes in two screens.

Ramseyer told the officers he saw someone get into a car and drive away on Clarendon Road.

In another case of rock throwing, two thermal windows were broken at the Holiday Inn. The night clerk, Larry Lyles, told the investigating officers he had been called by the occupant of one room, who reported he had heard loud noises in the adjoining room. The windows in this room were found broken by rocks.

Monday Mrs. Nola Neighbors, 107 East 11th, reported two storm panels in the front door of her home and had been kicked out. She said that on Saturday, she heard someone kicking at the door and when she investigated she saw someone running away. The same thing happened Sunday, but this time the panels were kicked out and she saw the culprit was a juvenile.

Horace Richards, 305 West Morgan, reported Tuesday morning someone had broken a window at the Union Savings Bank. An employee of the bank, Richards said he found the window broken as he was cleaning. A bottle was also found inside of the building. There were no signs of entry.

Son of Two Ex-Sedalians Found Dead

GRANDVIEW — A 13-year-old youth, son of a former Sedalia couple, was found hanged Sunday in the basement of his home here.

Charles R. Sims, son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Sims, and a student at Grandview East Junior High School, apparently died accidentally, according to Police Chief Robert T. Williams.

The police officer said the boy had placed a mirror on a chair, apparently to watch his reactions, after watching a television western, "The Hanging Tree." Death was considered accidental since the youth had not been depressed and left no note. The family moved here around 1965.

The boy is the grandson of Mr. and Mrs. R. H. Sims, 620 West Broadway, Sedalia. His body was found hanging from a beam in the basement of his home by his nine-year-old sister, Patricia Dianne. She notified a neighbor, Daryl Garrison, who freed the youth from the rope.

The boy was a member of the First Baptist Church here and a member of the Boy Scouts of America.

Surviving are his parents and sister, and his paternal grandparents of Sedalia.

Funeral services will be held at 10:30 a.m. Wednesday at the church.

Graveside services will be held at 2:30 p.m. Wednesday at Crown Hill Cemetery, Sedalia.

Campbell's Fund Tops $2,000 Mark

The Rev. Jerry Campbell Fund in the Third National Bank as of Tuesday morning stood at $2,150.05, according to Mrs. A. C. Kroeger, Route 2, a member of Goodwill Chapel United Methodist Church.

The fund drive was started in Pettis County following a two-car accident Nov. 29 near Fristoe in which three persons were killed and four hospitalized. Dead are Angela Marie, 8, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jerry Campbell, Route 2; and Mr. and Mrs. Allen Bruntz, Hastings, Neb.

Hospitalized were Mr. and Mrs. Campbell, and their children Kenneth, 7, and Laura, 5.

According to a Bothwell Hospital spokesman, Mr. and Mrs. Campbell are listed in "good" condition at the hospital. Their daughter, Laura, was discharged from the hospital Dec. 31, but is to report back within a month. She is residing in Springfield with an aunt, Mrs. Kroeger said.

Kenneth Campbell, who was semi-conscious for several days at the University of Missouri Medical Center in Columbia, is apparently in an "improved" condition and is residing in Springfield with an uncle, according to Mrs. Kroeger. He is being treated as an out-patient at a Springfield hospital, she added.

Mr. Campbell is the pastor of Goodwill Chapel and New Bethel United Methodist Church.

Trailer Unit Overtures; No Injuries Noted

Several bales of wood shavings were spilled onto the roadway in a tractor-trailer accident on East 12th, a short distance west of Harding, at 11:57 p.m. Monday.

Involved was a tractor-trailer unit driven west on Broadway by Larry O. Watring, Otterville. Watring told police that as he entered the curve leading from 12th to East Broadway, the load of baled wood shavings shifted, causing the trailer to break loose from the tractor and overturn. The tractor remained upright.

The trailer is owned by Smithton Industries, which manufactures the wood shavings, and the tractor is owned by William H. Albin, Otterville.

who are staying at the home will probably be forced into unlicensed homes because licensed homes of this type cannot afford to keep them at the $200 per month rate. In unlicensed homes they would have to stay in rooms with three or four other people, and I would hate to tell you what the state of Missouri thinks of that."

In answer to questions from the press and others, it was explained that there are several reasons for the home's financial straits. Wage increases to meet state requirements, expenses for fireproof linens, plus increased costs in other areas were some of the items discussed.

Mrs. Glenna Danforth, administrator for the home, said in her meetings with other administrators throughout the state, she noted some of the homes charged regular commercial rates for those who could afford to pay.

This idea was discarded and as explained by Mr. Speaker, "We would be competing in the price field with commercial homes who have to pay rent, taxes and other costs we do not have to pay. We would be in a lot of trouble with the state attorney general."

Mr. Speaker said he explained the home's financial status with its upcoming problems two years ago, but feels the County Court does not recognize the problem. "I feel they have not been completely honest with us," he said.

Mrs. Askew said the new welfare proposal now in the legislature, which Governor Hearnes has declared one of the items that must be considered as soon as possible, will help. But the new law is only under consideration, not passed, she pointed out.

Members of the board recognized the problems of the County Court, but this is also a county problem that must be met, Mr. Speaker said. "I know they have problems, but so do we, and ours has to deal with our aged citizens," he added.

Mr. Speaker predicted the demise of homes such as Buena Vista within five to 10 years, simply because they will not be needed. He said the current need for such homes was created by the situation that existed before social security became effective.

"I believe that in a few years, the problem of low-income elderly people will disappear and under improved social security income now effective, elderly people can pay their own way in regular commercial rest homes," he said.

"But during these five to 10 years, our problem will exist," he concluded.

Says Educators Are Builders of Future

"Architects of The Future" was the topic of the message delivered by Miss Marion Smith at the Saturday luncheon meeting of the Alpha Omega Chapter of Delta Kappa Gamma Society International honorary society of women educators.

"Teaching is a challenge," Miss Smith, past president of Delta State and a former teacher in the Sedalia school system, said. Teachers should know young people need confidence, not criticism; guidance, not judgment; encouragement not resentment; and understanding, not berating.

Quoting James Allen's, "As a Man Thinketh," she said, "We are the architects of our future, for better or worse." As a challenge to each person to make the world better, to seek greater heights, to shape and to mold Miss Smith read a poem written by Miss Elsie Lindgren, called "Masters of Our Fate."

In accordance with Miss Catherine Rathman, international executive secretary, Miss Smith urged her audience to be receptive to change, to seek positive attitudes, and to set immediate goals. "Delta Kappa Gamma members can be architects of a great tomorrow because educators do mold and shape character," she concluded.

Miss Ida Cruzan, chairman of the committee on personal growth and services, introduced Miss Smith and conducted a question and answer session following the address.

Preceding Miss Smith's address, Dr. Bessie Elliot, chairman of the committee on scholarships, explained Project North America, a move by Delta Kappa Gamma members to provide scholarships for advanced college work and to provide two teachers for the teaching of English and basic reading at the Navajo Community College, Ariz. A contribution is being sent from members in the name of the organizer, Miss Edith Brooks, it was announced.

A special song fest was conducted by the music committee under the direction of Mrs. Fyrne Leaton. Participating were Mrs. Dorothy Brady, Mrs. Helen Coffelt, and Mrs. Sue Friedly.

Guests introduced were Fred Davis, president of the State Fair Community College, Chuck Teegarden, Kenton Vansickle and Wilford C. Lee.

Crack in Ceiling Causes Her Problem

By POLLY CRAMER
Polly's Problem

DEAR POLLY — I think our kitchen ceiling is plasterboard and it has a crack where water leaked in. I hope someone can tell me the proper way to mend it. — BETTY

DEAR POLLY — My Pet Peeve concerns cotton-filled toys with labels that indicate they are machine-washable, but when washed they get lumpy. The only stuffed toys I have found to be machine-washable are those filled with foam and homemade ones, filled with old nylons. The latter can also be dried in the dryer which fluffs them up but, of course, those with foam rubber filling cannot be so dried. — LILLIAN

DEAR POLLY — Helen wanted to know how to remove indentations in her carpet made by furniture. I have removed these by putting a bit of water in each hole and allowing it to dry. Use just enough water to wet the nap but no more. For deep indentations, it may be necessary to do this twice. When dry, rub with the fingers to raise the nap. I have used this method on wool, nylon and cotton carpet. — MRS. L. H. M.

DEAR POLLY AND HELEN — I have deep pile rugs and to remove the flat spots that appear after moving furniture I use the end of my sweeper hose without any attachment and on full suction. This lifts the pile up to its original shape. — STELLA

DEAR POLLY — I was about to discard a very old, inexpensive aluminum percolator-type coffeepot but used it to make a unique flower container. I saved egg shells and, using that popular all-purpose milky white glue, I glued pieces of the shells all over the pot. Next I painted them shiny white and have a striking accessory for almost nothing. Now my pot is filled with fresh mums, with the lid propped up against it for a nice effect. — MRS. A. C. S.

DEAR POLLY — When I was the floor I always put a bit of wax on the bottom of furniture, such as chairs, tables and the like, so when something is moved about the floor does not get scratched. — ALTA

Low Calorie Lunch With Pears, Tuna

By AILEEN CLAIRE
NEA Food Editor

Daytime eating habits of many house-bound mothers are almost as bad as those of their rushing teen-agers. A pot of coffee, cake or donuts often are the typical bill of fare. Many women say they are too rushed to eat, don't like to fix a meal to eat alone or are dieting. However, the sweets route is no way to lose weight. Low calorie salads, especially those using high protein items such as tuna, cheese or cottage cheese, keep the weight down and perk up a woman's vitality. A Trim Pear-Tuna Salad is an attractive and tasty way to consume about 200 calories. Or try a Dippin' Pear Salad using low-calorie cottage cheese blended with orange juice concentrate for a new taste sensation. This is approximately 230 calories.

TRIM PEAR-TUNA SALAD

1 medium fresh winter pear

1/4 cup water-packed canned tuna

2 tablespoons diced green pepper

1 tablespoon bottled low-calorie French or Italian dressing

2 teaspoons lemon juice

Pinch sugar

Lettuce cup

Dice pear. Toss with tuna and green pepper. Combine dressing, lemon juice and sugar. Pour over salad and toss. Spoon into lettuce cup. Makes 1 salad. Approximately 200 calories.

DIPPIN' PEAR SALAD

1 medium fresh winter pear

1/2 cup low-calorie cottage cheese

1 tablespoon orange juice concentrate, thawed

1 or 2 tablespoons skim milk

Cut pear into wedges. Place cottage cheese and orange juice concentrate in blender container. Blend until smooth, adding milk as needed. Mixture should be very thick. Pour into small dish. Use pear wedges to scoop up cottage cheese mixture. Makes 1 salad. Approximately 230 calories. (Newspaper Enterprise Assn.)

Safer Cigarettes Key Objective

WASHINGTON (AP) — Recognizing that Americans continue to smoke despite the higher risk of cancer, heart attacks and lung diseases, the U.S. surgeon general said today that new efforts must be encouraged to develop safer cigarettes.

And the health hazard may not be limited to smokers, the Public Health Service said in a 22-page report to Congress.

Nonsmokers in a smoke-filled room may be exposed to carbon monoxide levels exceeding some local air-pollution limits, the report said, and especially threatening to persons already suffering from chronic bronchopulmonary and coronary diseases.

"We must continue to encourage cessation as the only certain way to protect both the individual and society from the harmful effects of smoking," Surgeon General Jesse L. Steinfield said.

"The report, the fifth in a series since the first 1964 surgeon general's report linked cigarette smoking to disease and premature death, recommended that primary emphasis in developing a safer cigarette be aimed at reduction of carbon monoxide, nicotine and tar."

Sen. Frank Moss immediately announced that his Senate Commerce subcommittee will hold hearings Feb. 1, 3 and 10 to consider legislation setting tar and nicotine limits.

Health Secretary Elliot L. Richardson, in a letter accompanying the new smoking report, told Congress the department supports regulatory efforts by the Federal Trade Commission to require health warnings in cigarette advertising along with listings of each brand's tar and nicotine content. Printed health warnings now are required on cigarette packages.

"Should these efforts fail, however, we would return to our previous recommendations that this should be accompanied through legislative action," he said.

The report said carbon monoxide...

Arthritis Might Strike Teen-agers

Dear Dr. Lamb — Could you give me some information on rheumatoid arthritis? My daughter is almost 17 years old and about two-and-a-half years ago her wrists started to ache and pain. The doctor said it was a mild form of arthritis.

The last few months her condition has gotten worse. The pain and aches are now in her ankles, elbows, knees and, it seems, all her joints. The attacks come much more frequently and stay longer. She often awakes in the night crying with pain.

We took her to a specialist and he said it was rheumatoid arthritis.

It is so hard to watch an active teen-ager hobble around some days because her ankles are too sore to walk on properly.

Dear Reader — The description of your daughter's trouble is typical of rheumatoid arthritis. Although it more often occurs a little later, it can and does occur in teenagers. The best program is to be under the care of a specialist in arthritis. Perhaps the doctor you are now seeing is one, technically called a rheumatologist. Since you are in Canada I don't know what type of organizations you might have to help with this problem. But you can write to the Arthritis Foundation, 1212 Avenue of the Americas, New York, N.Y. 10036, to find out if there are any nearby Canadian chapters that can offer literature or information, or even the names of specialists in rheumatology. People in the United States can do the same or obtain help from a chapter in their community. If there is one in your city, it will be listed in the telephone directory.

I can offer you one word of encouragement. LaTue Stone, who has lived with this problem for 25 years, sat down and wrote what it was like to live with her arthritis. I added a brief review of the important medical considerations. You can get this book by sending your name, address and zip code, along with $1 (plus 25 cents postage and handling) to Arthritis Book, P.O. Box 489, Dept. 653, Radio City Station, New York, N.Y. 10019. I am sure that many arthritics can gain hope and help by reading LaTue's life experience.

There are a lot of helpful things that can be done for people with arthritis. The most important advice I can give you, though, is to be certain that your daughter is under the care of someone actively treating arthritis and who is a specialist in that problem. Then stay with your doctor and don't chase after miracle cures. Your daughter may need help most of her life to avoid deformities and crippling. I know that is harsh and I hate to say it, but you must realize that continued unremitting medical supervision by a competent doctor is your best chance to provide a happy future for your daughter.

Inside the 'Anti-Protocol' Office

WASHINGTON — In the supersecret documents that columnist Jack Anderson released, it was revealed that both President Nixon and Henry Kissinger supported Pakistan much more strongly than the country was led to believe, and also were far more hostile toward India than anyone had reason to assume.

The transcript of one of the high-level meetings held at the White House during the crisis shows that Kissinger took a very tough stand toward India. Part of the minutes read: "Dr. Kissinger also directed that henceforth we show a certain coolness to the Indians; the Indian ambassador is not to be treated at too high a level."

Now while this sounds petty, when you read it in cold print, it is obvious to everyone that the most powerful nation in the world must show its displeasure when it believes another country has let it down.

One of the ways this is accomplished is to punish the ambassador as Dr. Kissinger recommended.

But how is this done?

Deep in the bowels of the State Department there is a bureau whose sole function is to make life miserable for the embassy of a country that the United States is feuding with. It is known as the anti-protocol office and it is at present headed up by Horace Bitterman, a former guard at Attica prison.

I talked to Mr. Bitterman the other day, and while he refused to confirm or deny that the screws had been put to the Indian ambassador, he did tell me how the anti-protocol office operates.

"When we get alerted by the White House that the President wishes to show a certain coolness to a country, we go immediately into action. The first thing we do is notify the sanitation department not to pick up the embassy's garbage. Then we send out a fleet of used cars to block the embassy's driveway.

"We also begin digging a subway station in front of the ambassador's residence with our workers starting to drill at 5 o'clock in the morning. This serves two purposes. It prevents the ambassador from getting any sleep; and the dug-up street makes it impossible for him to hold any diplomatic receptions because people have nowhere to park."

"That's pretty good," I said. "What do you do when someone in the White House says that an ambassador is not to be treated at too high a level?"

"The first thing we do is notify all the restaurants in town that if the ambassador reserves a table, he is to be seated next to the kitchen door."

"Then we send out word to the town's caterer that when the ambassador holds a party he must be provided with three-day-old hors d'oeuvre."

"We also telex all Washington hostesses to say that if he is invited to a dinner party, the President wishes him to be seated 'below the salt.'"

"When the ambassador requests to see the secretary of state, he is given an audience with a code clerk trainee. We tow his car away while he's in the building."

"You people don't fool around," I said.

"We don't set policy here. We only follow orders," Mr. Bitterman said.

"What if the ambassador gets angry and goes back to his own country in a huff?"

"Then," said Bitterman with a smile, "we notify the airlines and they arrange to lose his luggage."

A Conservative View

Top Level Leak Is Serious

By JAMES J. KILPATRICK

WASHINGTON — We are in the midst of another of those great ruffled flaps involving the press, the government, and the ethics of public and private conduct. This one is serious.

The story goes back to the first week in December, when the Washington Special Action Group met at the White House to discuss the suddenly flaming war launched by India against East Pakistan. The WSAG, in effect, is the super-National Security Council of this administration — a top-level coordinating body intended to serve the President with the best advice and intelligence that can be pulled together by skilled and experienced men.

The three WSAG meetings of December 3, 4 and 6 were held in confidence, of course, behind locked doors, but written minutes were prepared. These minutes were stamped "secret-sensitive," which is the classification level just below "top secret," and then were distributed among an estimated 50 to 75 persons in the Pentagon, State Department, CIA, and the White House.

A person or persons unknown made copies of the memoranda and gave them to columnist Jack Anderson. He excerpted them for use in his column, and a few days later supplied the texts for use by newspapers generally. In one view—it is the view of anti-Nixon liberals—Anderson performed a great public service, and his anonymous informant was a man of noble character who risked his job in the name of truth and honesty in government.

There is another view. The importance of this disquieting affair does not lie in the memoranda themselves. The importance lies in the leak. Make no mistake: This leak must be found, and it must be stopped. This is a breach of trust, and a breach of security, of the most profoundly serious implications.

The memoranda are embarrassing, no more. For the most part, the minutes reflect the discussion of men trying to find out what is going on, and seeking to decide what best to do about it. The President, they are advised, is angry at India for its aggressive action; he wants "a tilt toward Pakistan." There is much talk of the futility of the United Nations. One detects sympathy for the plight of the emerging nation of Bangladesh; it promises to become "an international basket case." The conferees come to no particular decisions. They agree to prepare certain papers for the President. Their discussion is candid, spontaneous, unreserved.

Subsequent to these private meetings, the White House was publicly to assert its neutrality in the India-Pakistan war. Obviously the White House was not neutral. This was self-evident to every editor and critic in the country. But to say that the leaked memoranda prove "duplicitous" or "hypocritical" is to fall into naivete.

It is a fair surmise that every government in history has taken public positions inconsistent with its private wishes. Diplomats know this. They feed on dissimulation; they dwell behind facades. More than a century ago, Cavour remarked that he had discovered the art of deceiving diplomats: "I speak the truth, and they never believe me." The publication of these December memoranda may prove discomfiting, but the embarrassment is not gross.

What matters, to repeat, is the leak itself. This is not to be compared with the action of the Washington Post last month in blowing Henry Kissinger's cover as the source of a recent background; that was no more than an ill-mannered breach of professional rules. Neither is it to be compared with Daniel Ellsberg's clandestine distribution last spring of the aging "Pentagon Papers." Ellsberg was then out of the government.

We must infer, in this instance, that someone still employed at the very highest levels of confidence—someone holding top secret clearance, with access to other memoranda of immense importance—has wantonly violated the trust reposed in him. This goes beyond disloyalty; it sails close to the windward edge of treason. What other documents, one must wonder, has this person secretly copied? Where will he peddle them next? This is the alarming aspect. Anderson thinks it "funny," but then Anderson would. It is not funny at all.

Hearnes' Proposal For Juvenile Care

Included in Gov. Warren E. Hearnes' $260 million bond issue proposal for capital improvements is a $2,091,910 allocation for a maximum security facility to house juvenile prisoners.

While that amount falls short of the recommendation by the Missouri Task Force on Juvenile Delinquency, it would be a beginning toward solving a problem in the state that has reached crisis proportions.

This is the problem of handling hard-core juveniles that are currently assigned to the State Training School at Boonville. The challenge has come to a head since the Missouri Supreme Court ruled a year ago that incorrigible juveniles could no longer be transferred to the adult Department of Corrections.

It is no coincidence that in the first seven months of last year, following the decision, runaways from Boonville increased 23 per cent and assaults on staff members, 121 per cent, over all of 1970. Figures beyond that period are not available.

Although no more than perhaps 15 per cent of the population of the state's juvenile facilities on any given date could be classified as "hyperaggressive," according to the Task Force report, the influence of this segment on all institutionalized boys is considerable — and harmful.

The presence of these hard-core elements at Boonville makes education and rehabilitation of other youngsters extremely difficult, if not impossible. Segregation is the only answer.

Recommended by the Task Force on Juvenile Delinquency were two new high security juvenile facilities located near both St. Louis and Kansas City, where the vast majority of all such offenders originate. This remains the best proposal, but since half a loaf would be better than none, Governor Hearnes' recommendation deserves serious consideration.

Sen. Ike Skelton has introduced legislation to accomplish the same end. We hope action is taken this year to clear the way for construction of at least one such facility so Missouri's juvenile offenders can be handled in a way that at least offers a chance of rehabilitation.

Cable Blows Cover On Cambodian Role

By JACK ANDERSON

WASHINGTON — A secret exchange between Washington and Phnom Penh reveals that officials aren't telling the truth about the U.S. role in Cambodia.

Because of congressional hostility, the Nixon administration has pretended to take no active part in raising funds from other nations to support the tottering regime of Cambodian strongman Lon Nol.

The secret cables show, however, that the United States not only is bringing political pressure on other governments to contribute to Lon Nol but has actually prepared a solicitation letter for Lon Nol's signature.

Apparently, U.S. policymakers don't trust the Cambodian leader to write his own letters on such a delicate matter. The appeal was supposed to be addressed "on a personal basis" to other heads of state who might have a little cash to spare for Cambodian aid.

Congressmen have balked at financing Lon Nol because of the dismaying similarity between his regime and some of the corrupt, floundering South Vietnamese regimes that have cost the American taxpayers a fortune.

In an earlier column, we quoted from secret dispatches that described Lon Nol as "a sick man, both physically and mentally," and told of widespread incompetence and corruption throughout his government.

Even some of the able men under him were characterized, respectively, as "an inveterate gambler," "a compulsive womanizer" and a leader whose "personal authority is diluted by a tendency toward financial corruption."

American Ambassador Emory Swank, in one secret report, criticized "Lon Nol's haphazard, out-of-channel and ill-coordinated conduct of military operations." The result is that Communist hit-and-run harassing operations have developed—apparently much to the Viet Cong's surprise—into a serious military threat to the Cambodian capital.

Similar reports about some of South Vietnam's earlier political corruption and military bungling were kept secret from the American people. If the truth had been known in time, the United States might have been spared some of the lives and resources that have gone down the drain in Vietnam.

Because of the Vietnam experience, Congress is keeping a tight rein on Cambodia aid. The Nixon administration has gone behind congressional backs, however, to sneak military supplies into Cambodia through South Vietnam and Indonesia.

Now the administration has resorted to deception again to raise exchange support funds (ESF) for Cambodia.

Cambodia "has undertaken to do its own representations to elicit donors for the ESF," a State Department spokesman told us blandly.

But secret instructions were cabled to the American Embassy in Phnom Penh, declaring: "We believe political approach necessary lest finance ministries, who are generally opposed new aid programs, arrange for an evasive or negative reaction to (the Cambodian) appeal."

"Department believes high-level political appeal needed to improve chances for success. Letter from Lon Nol to heads of prospective donor governments could help nail down (contributions)."

Refutes Fluoride Critic

Several weeks ago you published a letter from Mr. Boul, a registered pharmacist, criticizing the fluoridation of public water supplies on scientific and medical grounds. Although I have high respect for the opinions of those who argue against fluoridation on philosophical grounds, I become impatient when scientific facts become twisted in order to bolster what presumably is a philosophical basis for an objection. If we were discussing the question of fluoridation on a philosophical level, credentials would be irrelevant; each man is entitled to his opinion. But Mr. Boul chose to discuss this matter on the plane of science; it is here that credentials have some relevancy.

I, therefore, claim that as professor of biochemistry in the University of Missouri School of Medicine and investigator in the Space Sciences Research Center and with 20 years of experience in bone and tooth research, that my scientific credentials are no less in this matter than those of a registered pharmacist. I first became interested in the beneficial effects of fluoride on dental decay while I was on the faculty of the Harvard Medical School and School of Dental Medicine in the early 1950's.

First let me state that the fluoride ion, whether it comes from water naturally fluoridated or from water artificially fluoridated, is identical. Whatever its source, it finds its way into the mineral crystals of both bones and teeth and gives them their added strength to resist fractures in the case of bones and decay in the case of teeth. These mineral crystals are excellent discriminators of foreign materials; they will not allow entry of other elements closely related to fluoride, such as chloride, bromide, and iodide. This in itself is a beautiful illustration that natural and artificial fluoride are identical.

Several communities in Missouri, and Columbia is one of them, are blessed with an adequate amount of fluoride naturally present in the water. Unfortunately, Sedalia is not one of those communities. It would, therefore, greatly benefit Sedalia to join those other communities of Missouri representing close to 2 million persons, which have adjusted the fluoride content of their drinking water to the optimum level of one part per million. Such communities can expect to see on the average of 60 per cent reduction in dental decay.

One further point deserves comment. With 17 years of teaching and research experience in the discipline of medical pharmacology, I was particularly sensitive to Mr. Boul's description of fluoride as a poison. First let me state that all chemicals including common table salt, are poisonous in sufficiently high doses. If we accept the acute fatal dose of fluoride as 4,000 milligrams then a simple calculation reveals that in order to poison oneself from fluoride present in the drinking water at 1 part per million (or approximately 1 milligram per quart), one would have to drink 4,000 quarts of water in a single day to reach this dose! Long before this, one would have died of water intoxication, for water itself at these doses is a poison.

Staubach Must Prove Himself As a Passer

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — To Roger Staubach, the Super Bowl means more than a challenge to prove that the Dallas Cowboys can win the big ones—his own personal stake is an imposing one.

"I must win," he said solemnly today. "I must prove myself as a passer."

The strapping 6-3, 197-pound former Heisman Trophy winner from the Naval Academy is conscious that at 29 he concedes an edge in experience to his rival in next Sunday's championship game, 26-year-old Bob Griese of the Miami Dolphins.

"Griese is a more complete quarterback than I," he said during a practice break at the New Orleans Saints' workout field. "He has control of his team—I don't. That is the major difference."

Griese is a five-year veteran out of Purdue. This is the first regular season of play—virtually the rookie year—for Staubach, who spent four years in Navy service, including a year in Vietnam, before returning to civilian life and pro football in 1969.

Whereas Griese is permitted by Coach Don Shula to call almost the entire game, Staubach is merely the feeder and the architect for Dallas' plays, shuttled by messenger from the bench on every down.

"When I feel my quarterback is experienced enough, I'll let him call the plays," says Dallas Coach Tom Landry.

Staubach is not offended so much by this lack of confidence as by the tag that has been plastered on him as "the scrambling quarterback."

"I don't like it that most people consider me primarily a runner instead of a passer," he said. "I can pass as well as anybody. My job now is to prove it."

Staubach, an all-around athlete in high school in his native Cincinnati, is a handsome, straight-backed athlete who is articulate, outspoken and still given to military protocol.

He calls almost everybody "sir."

"I'm really a sporadic runner," Staubach explained. "In some games I don't run at all. In others, I may run a great deal. It depends on the circumstances."

During the past season, Staubach rushed the ball 41 times for 343 yards and an 8.4 average with two touchdowns. He completed 126 of 211 passes for 1,882 yards and 15 touchdowns.

Soccer Tigers Get Out Of League's Basement

With their tie over previously unbeaten, untied Pembroke Country Day of Kansas City, the Smith-Cotton soccer team moved out of the Metro Seven Soccer League's basement and into a tie for third place in the seven-team league.

S-C has three points, two for a victory over Kansas City, Kan. Ward High School and one for Saturday's 1-1 tie with Pembroke.

Pembroke and Rockhurst are now deadlocked for the league's top spot, each with seven points. Pembroke has amassed their seven points on three wins and a tie, while Rockhurst is 3-1-1.

Miege, Kansas City, Kan., and Kansas City Bishop Hogan are locked in a battle for second place with four points, followed by S-C and Saviors of the World of Bonner Springs, Kan.

The Tigers meet Bonner Springs in a league match Saturday, in Jennie Jaynes Stadium. A win will move the Bengals ahead of Saviors of the World in the standings, but a tie will keep the teams deadlocked in the current battle.

UCLA Fattens Margin Over Warriors in Poll

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

After wiping out the state of Oregon, UCLA cleaned up in the college basketball polls.

The Bruins, who trimmed both Oregon State and Oregon over the weekend, continue to ride high, wide and handsome as the nation's No. 1 team today.

A nationwide panel of sports writers and broadcasters doled out 39 of 41 first-place ballots to UCLA and fattened the Bruins' point margin over runner-up Marquette.

The Bruins, who led the Warriors by 22 points last week, accumulated a 96-point margin this time—816 to 720. Marquette, which defeated No. 4 South Carolina over the weekend, got the other first-place ballots and maintained a strong grip on No. 2.

North Carolina, which walloped Furman last week, remained No. 3 with 630 points while South Carolina stayed No. 4 with 432.

After that, the ranks don't look quite the same as last week.

Sweet Springs Visits Grem's

Four Kaysinger Teams Face Non-League Foes

Sweet Springs visits Sacred Heart tonight in one of four games involving Kaysinger Conference schools.

Other action features Warsaw at Versailles, Windsor at Cole Camp and Lone Jack at LaMonte. All are non-league games.

"We can't worry about Warsaw until after we have played Sweet Springs," commented Grem's coach Tom Beer. "We beat them (Sweet Springs) last season, but they are much improved and have almost all their players back this season."

In what is shaping up as a monumental battle, Beer was referring to Friday night's Kaysinger Conference contest against Warsaw on the Wildcats' home court.

Sacred Heart has a 3-0 mark in the league and is tied for the lead with LaMonte and Stover. On the other hand, Warsaw is right behind at 3-1, suffering a loss just before Christmas to LaMonte on the road.

In addition to Tuesday night's four non-league games, Northwest will take on Lincoln in an opening round game in the 16th Annual Stover Invitational Tournament. Host and second-seeded Stover will meet Green Ridge in the other first-round contest Tuesday night.

Smithton, the ninth member of the Kaysinger Conference, took on Leeton in a first-round contest in Monday night's action.

In the week's only other activity LaMonte will host Buncheon in a non-league game Friday night.

Volleyball standings remained the same as before Christmas, with Cole Camp and

Soph Substitute Stars for Tigers

By VAUGHN HART Sports Editor

STOVER — What happens when a basketball player plays in his first varsity game? Usually one of two things can happen — either he's so scared that he is a hindrance to the other four players on the court, or he puts everything together and has an outstanding game.

Rusty Templemire, a 6'3" sophomore who has been averaging over 20 points per game as a jayvee player for the Smithton Tigers this year, came off the bench in the first quarter of the Bengals' first-round game Monday night in the Stover Invitational Tournament and turned in a standout performance.

Templemire wound up with 16 points and 14 rebounds and was an instrumental figure in the Tigers' 81-55 drubbing of fourth-seeded Leeton.

Other Monday night action found top-seeded Tuscumbia roll over Otterville, 80-43.

"I was a little hesitant in putting him in," said Terry Pummill, coach of the Tigers after he watched Templemire help the Tigers into the winner's circle as they gained a semifinal berth against Tuscumbia.

"You don't have any idea how a young player will react," he added.

Templemire reacted well to the call and followed sharpshooting Paul Anderson and senior Dave Oelrich in the scoring column. Anderson was the game's leading scorer with 21 points; Oelrich, playing one of his best halves in the opening two periods against Leeton, followed with 18. Mike Ackerman also was in double figures with 15.

Don Campbell and John Cowan were the leading scorers for Leeton with 17 and 13 points in that order.

Leeton stayed close in the first period being down by only four, 20-16, as the teams lined up for the second-quarter tipoff. Smithton led at the end of the first half, however, 38-29.

But hot third and fourth quarters for Smithton guided them to the win.

Smithton completely dominated the boards. Templemire's 14 was tops for Pummill's crew; Ackerman hauled in 10 caroms, while John McCutchen and Oelrich snatched seven and six respectively.

Tuscumbia faced little challenge in the night's opening game against Otterville as the Lions rolled up a 19-5 first-period lead.

Opening in a 2-1-2 zone press in the first quarter and switching to a man-to-man press for the remainder of the contest, Tuscumbia cashed in on Eagles' turnovers and led at the intermission, 43-17.

The Lions, who picked up their 13th victory with the win, remain undefeated for the current campaign.

Five players made it to double figures for Tuscumbia. Larry Sullivan was the game's leading scorer with 19; Randy Graves and Ken Wyrick added 18 each; Tom Wright checked in with 11, while freshman starter Monty Graves had 10 from his guard position.

Randy Marcum was the only Otterville player to reach double figures; he had 13.

Games tonight, all of which are first-round contests, find third-seeded Northwest of Hughesville meeting Lincoln at 7 p.m.

Coach Donald Mosbaugh of the Mustangs will be without the Kaysinger Conference's leading rebounder Tim Kessler. Kessler suffered a pulled leg muscle recently.

Archer Wins Golf Playoff

LOS ANGELES (AP) — "You know," Tommy Aaron mused in characteristically thoughtful, soft-spoken fashion, "it's almost impossible for George Archer to make a bogey."

Tommy was standing in the fifth fairway while Archer was flailing away in the woods in their 18-hole playoff with Dave Hill for the title in the Glen Campbell-Los Angeles Open golf tournament.

He was right.

Archer, a 6-foot-6 former ranch hand from Gilroy, Calif., made a miracle par on the fifth, then clinched it all with a fantastic chip shot that saved par on the 17th hole and went on to a two-stroke victory in the fight for the $25,000 first prize.

Archer shot a five-under-par 66 in the playoff round while Aaron and Hill each had a 68 in the mild, sunny weather that bathed the 6,823-yard Rancho Park Golf Course and the extra-day crowd of about 4,000 who came out to see the three top-tested veterans.

Aaron and Hill, each 34 and each a dozen or more years on the pro tour, took home $11,575 apiece from the total purse of $125,000 in the traditional opening event on the long pro tour—but it was big George all the way.

He and Hill both hit it stiff on the first hole and birdied, but George took the lead when the slim, intense Hill bogeyed the second hole, and Archer led the rest of the way.

The race in the Central Missouri Conference for the 1971-72 basketball crown has boiled down to two groups — the have's and the have not's.

Heading the have group are Hannibal and Columbia, both 2-0 in loop play, and Sedalia Smith-Cotton, 2-1 for the league campaign to date.

The have not's are Jefferson City and Mexico, who have not won a conference game between them. Mexico is 0-2 in the CMC, while hapless Jefferson City is 0-3.

"We're right in the thick of it," says Jim Dinsdale of the Smith-Cotton Tigers. "We really need to pick up a win Saturday night, when we host Hannibal to stay right in the race."

However, none of the Tigers, and especially Dinsdale is looking past Friday's game in Raytown.

Raytown is 8-2 overall and is on top of the Suburban Nine Conference at 2-0. Raytown's only losses, a pair of 58-56 setbacks, were at the hands of Oak Park and Raytown South.

Hannibal, seemingly one of the top Class L schools in outstate Missouri, had to fight hard Saturday night before posting a 65-57 victory over Mexico. The win ran Hannibal's mark to 10-2; the Pirates are the first team to reach double figures in the overall standings of all the CMC teams.

"They're not quite as big as we are, but they are lightning fast and will break when they get the chance," concedes Dinsdale. "We'll have to do a very good defensive job on them," says the Tigers' mentor.

The Bengals are playing the most consistent ball that they have all year. In their last three games, they have scored a total of 235 points for a 75.0 average; defensively they have only allowed 156 points in as many games for a mark of 52.0.

Defense will be the key that the Tigers will seek hold onto in their two tough encounters this week.

Columbia, 2-0 and 9-1, has the top overall mark in the conference. But their 56-52 squeaker Friday night with the Jays left some doubt about strength. However, it is not really that uncommon when those two teams meet, since almost anything can happen ...

and usually does ... and almost did.

Mexico, the defending champion, has really had its problems. They have won only four of 13 games this year and are currently on the short end of a six-game losing skid.

Jefferson City is no better off; they have not won since the third-place game in the Tipton Invitational Tournament, early in December. They have even a worse losing string than does Mexico. The Jays are winless in their seven outings.

Few Surprised Over President's Big Play

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — Don Shula guarantees it will be used. Tom Landry figured it would be. Paul Warfield is playing coy about it. Mel Renfro knows he will have to stop it.

Everybody on the Super Bowl teams is talking about it—except Duane Thomas, who isn't talking to or about anything.

What is it?

It's the President's Play. The President's Play is the maneuver President Nixon has suggested that Shula have his Miami Dolphins use in Sunday's Super Bowl game against Landry's Dallas Cowboys—a down-and-in pass from Bob Griese to Warfield.

It hit everyone with about as much surprise as the President's announcement that he would run for re-election since the down-and-in—a maneuver in which Warfield streaks down the left sideline and then veers toward the middle of the field—is used frequently by the Dolphins.

Shula was even willing to take a Joe Namath-like stance and guarantee that Nixon will see it.

"I can guarantee you'll see the play," said Shula. "It's one of our favorites."

That didn't exactly come as a major surprise to Landry, who apparently will have to go into the game without presidential assistance.

"He," said Landry, speaking of Nixon, "picked a play we have a good chance of seeing run—there's a distinct possibility it'll be used."

Shula may guarantee and Landry may anticipate it, but the focal point will be the individual battle between Warfield trying to catch it and Renfro trying to stop it.

And right now Warfield apparently is trying to get a psychological edge—which might help more than Nixon's play-calling.

"I was sort of surprised when he suggested it," Warfield said. "I knew he was a staunch football fan, but to know the exact maneuver ... he's probably seen the play on national television."

"But," said Warfield, throwing in the psychological needle for Renfro's edification, "It's not necessarily my best pattern. Just because of the attention doesn't mean I'll go to it or stay away from it.

"If it happens I'll just be thinking of my pattern—making adjustments on my release from the line of scrimmage—to make it successful. Because the President suggested it, doesn't mean there's any additional pressure."

And, then, maybe for Renfro's benefit, he reiterated. "It doesn't mean I'm going to use it. It doesn't mean I won't use it."

Renfro, of course, has seen Warfield run the pattern which he did in the American Football Conference championship game against Baltimore, setting up the Dolphins' final touchdown in a 21-0 victory with a 50-yard reception.

Renfro can't lose sight of that, but he also remembers being singled out as one of the goats in last year's Super Bowl loss to Baltimore, having tipped a pass that fell into John Mackey's hands for a Colt touchdown in their 16-13 victory.

Renfro still lives with that. "I think I'll always be haunted by it," Renfro said. "I was in a trance afterwards. I didn't answer the phone for six weeks. I still don't think I touched the ball. The films I saw were inconclusive."

"But I've learned to live with it."

California, Boonville Gain Easy Tourney Victories

CALIFORNIA — First-seeded California and second-seeded Boonville had no trouble in advancing to the semifinals in the upper and lower brackets of the 38th Annual California Basketball Tournament Monday night.

California rolled over Russellville, 75-53, behind the high scoring of Steve Flippin, who led the Pintos with 20 points. Bruce Sestke and Roy Raithel provided the bulk of the scoring output for Russellville, combining for 43 points. Sestke led the way with 22.

Boonville topped South Callaway, 67-46, in Monday night's other first-round contest.

Pete Rorvig was the only Boonville player in double figures as Coach Fred Biesemeyer cleared the bench. Rorvig fired in 27 points.

South Callaway was led by Dan Sine, who canned 19.

Two more first-round contests are slated for tonight in the tourney. They find fourth-seeded Marshall meeting Fatima of Westphalia at 7 p.m.; third-seeded Glasgow will tangle with University of Columbia at 8:30 p.m.

Big Eight Keeps Close Eye on Rest of Nation

KANSAS CITY (AP) — Mickey Holmes, Big Eight Conference director of services, said today league officials are compiling information on what is being done nationally regarding the new freshman rule.

The National Collegiate Athletic Association made University division freshmen football and basketball players eligible for varsity competition in action at its annual meeting last Saturday in Hollywood, Fla.

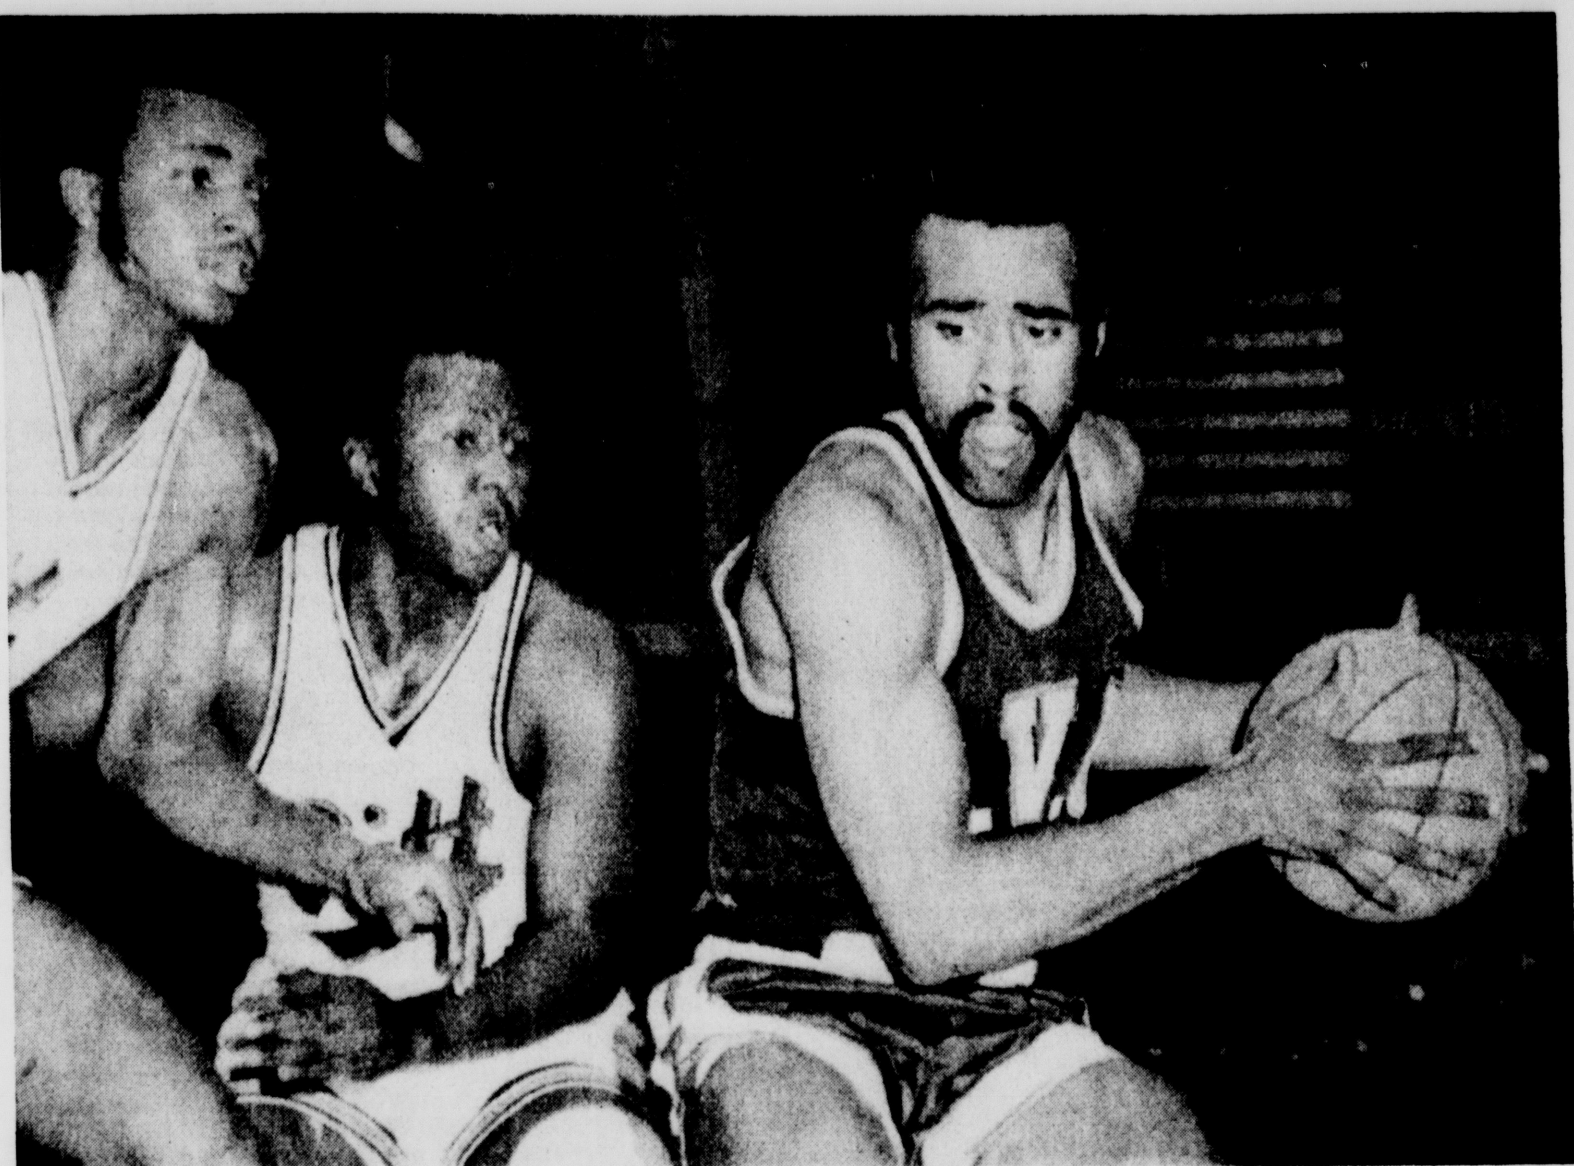

Holmes said Big Eight Commissioner Chuck Neinas is keeping a close watch on action by other conferences and independent schools. The Southwest Conference has already adopted the rule.

Big Eight faculty representatives, the league's governing body, returned from the NCAA meeting to discuss the matter with their respective athletic directors and football coaches, Holmes said.

The Big Eight voted some time ago against the use of freshmen in football. Neinas said the conference favored the use of freshmen in basketball.

Action by the Big Eight on the rule is expected to be taken shortly in view of current recruiting activity, the new rule passed by the NCAA becomes effective Aug. 1.

Lamar Cans 21 Points In Ragin' Cajuns' Win

By KEN RAPPOPORT
Associated Press Sports Writer

Dwight Lamar was an unknown quantity and an unwanted commodity in high school.

Now the whole country is talking about Southwestern Louisiana's little, old point-maker.

"He's the best pure shooter I've ever seen," says Long Beach State basketball Coach Jerry Tarkanian, who should know. He snubbed the Ohio high school product and lived to regret it.

Lamar, who scored 42 points Monday night to boost his nation-leading average and help the 13th-ranked Ragin' Cajuns defeat Northwestern Louisiana 101-88, never enjoyed the limelight at Columbus East high school.

In fact, when Tarkanian visited the city he had only two players in mind for recruiting purposes—Ed Ratleff, his current star, and Nick Connor, now with Illinois.

And when Ratleff suggested that Tarkanian look at Lamar, the coach suggested back: "No, thanks. I've never heard of him."

The final, ironic twist to the story came earlier this season when Tarkanian was welcomed to "Lamar Country." The 6-foot-1 Lamar scored 38 points to lead Southwestern Louisiana to a 90-83 victory over Long Beach State for the Bayou Classic title.

Providence upset 11th-ranked Villanova 76-59; 15th-rated Kentucky smashed Mississippi State 104-76 and 19th-rated Hawaii whipped Rice 84-65 in other games Monday night involving rated clubs.

Lamar, who led the nation's college division scorers last year with a 36-point average, now has a chance to win the university division scoring title because his school has moved up in status.

Winning both divisions would be precedent-setting, but it wouldn't surprise his coach, Beryl Shipley.

"He's the finest outside shooter I've ever coached," says Shipley. "He's as good a natural, rawboned shooting guard as any in America."

Roy Ebron also bedeviled Northwestern Louisiana, scoring 37 points and catching 28 rebounds. Marvin Barnes and Larry Ketvirtis each scored 22 points to lead Providence over Villanova. Henry Siemontowski scored 28 points for the Wildcats, who lost only for the second time in 13 starts.

Jim Andrews scored 24 points and Tom Parker added 28 in Kentucky's romp.

Beard Awarded All-Star Berth By Flip of Coin

NEW YORK (AP) — The flip of a coin has earned Butch Beard of the Cleveland Cavaliers a place on the Eastern Conference team for the National Basketball Association's All-Star game Jan. 18 at Los Angeles.

The unusual procedure was required after Beard, rookie center Elmore Smith of Buffalo and guard Nate Archibald of Cincinnati finished in a tie for the last position on the club in balloting by the eight Eastern Conference coaches.

The coaches were repelled, and Beard and Smith still were deadlocked. To resolve the issue, NBA Commissioner Walter Kennedy flipped a coin, and Beard, a second-year pro, received his first berth on the East squad.

Beard was one of six players added to the East aggregation Monday. The others were Jack Marin and Archie Clark of Baltimore, John Johnson of Cleveland, Tom Van Arsdale of Cincinnati and Bob Kauffman of Buffalo.

The eight other members of the 14-man team were chosen earlier by sportswriters and broadcasters. They were Jo Jo White, John Havlicek and Dave Cowens of Boston, Walt Frazier and Dave DeBusschere of New York, Lou Hudson of Atlanta, Billy Cunningham of Philadelphia and Wes Unseld of Baltimore.

Added to the Western Conference squad Monday were Jimmy Walker and Bob Lanier of Detroit, Connie Hawkins and Paul Silas of Phoenix, Elvin

Hayes of Houston and Sidney Wicks of Portland.

They will join Kareem Jabbar and Oscar Robertson of Milwaukee, Wilt Chamberlain, Jerry West and Gail Goodrich of Los Angeles, Bob Love of Chicago, Spencer Haywood of Seattle and Cazzie Russell of Golden State.

The West will have a decided height advantage with the 7-foot-2 Jabbar, 7-1 Chamberlain, 6-11 Lanier, 6-9½ Hayes, and Haywood and Wicks, both 6-9. Cowens will be the tallest East player at 6-9.

Ferguson Jenkins: Highest Paid Cub

CHICAGO (AP) — Cy Young winner Ferguson Jenkins, the Chicago Cubs' most productive pitcher in half a century, will be the highest salaried Cub player in history at an estimated $125,000 for each of the next two seasons.

Jenkins, who peaked a five-year string of 20 or more victories with a 24-13 record last season, signed Monday a two-year pact announced officially "in excess of $100,000" for each year.

Attorney Dave Schalia, a member of Ferguson Jenkins Enterprises, Ltd., said at a news conference that $125,000 was "a good guess" for the new salary of the National League's winningest pitcher last season.

Last season, Jenkins led the National League in complete games (30), innings pitched (325), and tied for most starts (39), and was No. 2 in strikeouts with 263.

He was the first Cub pitcher to win 20 or more games for five successive seasons since Mordecai Brown did it from 1906 through 1911.

Next season, Jenkins will be striving to match the record of six 20-plus-victory seasons set by Robin Roberts, 1950-55.

The National League record for a right-handed pitcher winning 20 or more games is held by Christy Matthewson, who did it 12 years in a row from 1903 through 1914.

Southern Attack Threat Explained

WASHINGTON (AP) — House investigators say failure of U.S. air defenses to spot a lumbering Cuban airliner before it landed at New Orleans last fall demonstrates an enemy attack could be launched from the south "with little risk of being detected in advance."

A report released today by the House Armed Services investigating subcommittee says U.S. authorities—despite three hours' notice—did not know the plane had penetrated American defenses until its pilot radioed for landing instructions.

The report calls the existing American air-defense system "virtually useless" and says a 1,500-mile gap between Florida and California is "virtually devoid of military surveillance and air-defense command and control."

"Since our potential enemies know of the gaping holes in our air defenses," said Chairman

F. Edward Hebert, D-La., "I think it is high time that the American people were let in on this open secret."

Hebert's subcommittee urged Secretary of Defense Melvin R. Laird to speed up lagging development of a new air-defense system—and for now install a sophisticated, new, over-the-horizon radar to cover Cuba and the Gulf of Mexico.

Gen. Seth J. McKee, commander of the North American Air Defense Command (NORAD) estimated the interim southern coverage would cost $70 million to $125 million.

McKee testified NORAD did not know the Russian-built Cuban airliner headed toward New Orleans last Oct. 26 with 21 Cuban sugar conferees had penetrated U.S. defenses until it was informed the pilot had radioed the New Orleans tower for landing instructions 33 minutes earlier.

That report to NORAD was interrupted with the information that the Cuban plane was on the ground, McKee testified.

Hebert's subcommittee said Havana had messaged the Miami Air Traffic Control almost four hours earlier with a flight plan, and the information was relayed to a variety of points including NORAD, the State Department, the Federal Aviation Administration headquarters in Washington and the New Orleans control tower.

The subcommittee said the FAA urged the State Department to permit the plane's entry so as not to endanger release from Havana of a hijacked American Airlines 747 with 235 passengers.

It also said the State Department notified NORAD the Cuban plane probably would not make the flight because the Havana airport was closed for the arrival of Soviet Premier Alexei Kosygin.

Disclaims Deal With KBI Agent

KANSAS CITY, Kan. (AP) — An Overland Park man arrested in Johnson County drug raids led by Atty. Gen. Vern Miller in November testified Monday he did not make a deal with a Kansas Bureau of Investigation agent.

Jack Lee Mead, 24, is charged in Johnson County District Court with possession of marijuana with intent to sell. He was arrested Nov. 8. KBI agent Steve Phillips said he obtained 20 bags of marijuana at a Shawnee apartment occupied by Frank Pellerito, 20, also charged with possession with intent to sell.

Phillips said both Mead and Pellerito were present when he paid $20 as a down payment and said he was going to sell the marijuana in St. Louis.

Mead said he did not make a deal to sell the drug, and denied selling or buying marijuana. Under cross examination, Mead said he had been convicted of possession of untaxed marijuana in Arizona.

GM Announces Added Workers

KANSAS CITY (AP) — General Motors Corporation announced Monday plans to add 200 production workers at its Leeds assembly division. The company said the workers were being added as part of a nationwide increase to meet new car demands.

The Leeds plant is one of six across the country ordered to rehire laid-off workers, or add others because of a surge in November and December car sales.

A spokesman for GM in Kansas City said the hiring of workers at Leeds will be accomplished by March 31. The new employees are expected to raise the work force here to 3,700.

Battle Continuing

Harold W. McGraw, Jr., president of the McGraw-Hill Book Co., displayed at a New York Press conference Monday facsimiles of two checks allegedly paid to Howard Hughes by McGraw-Hill for publication rights on a Hughes autobiography. In a session with reporters made public Sunday, Hughes charged the manuscript was a fraud. (UPI)

Hughes Manuscript Battle Continuing

NEW YORK (AP) — The controversy surrounding the forthcoming "autobiography" of Howard Hughes has thickened with the insistence of the man named as the collaborator that seven reporters who believed they had spoken with the billionaire recluse were duped. "That was not Howard Hughes," asserted Clifford Irving, the 41-year-old novelist who publisher McGraw-Hill says spent close to 100 taping sessions with Hughes in preparing the memoirs, set for publication March 27. The seven reporters who spent 2½ hours on Friday night speaking with a voice emanating from a small box in a Los Angeles banquet room all agreed the voice was indeed that of Hughes, who has not been seen publicly since 1957. Two voice print experts concurred. The voice told the seven men that the book now being printed by McGraw-Hill is a fraud, that he never met with Irving and that he had never even heard of him "until a matter of days ago." Publisher Harold McGraw Jr., head of the firm that has paid money in six figures for the rights to what it insists is a legitimate autobiography, appears willing to accept that the man who spoke on the telephone is Hughes. "My only thought is that he spoke too openly," in the autobiography, McGraw told newsmen Monday. "Some of his advisers must have advised him on the damaging aspects of the information as far as his business and personal life is concerned." McGraw said the publisher had "full confidence" in Irving and that the publishing company remained "absolutely convinced of the authenticity of this book and that the documentation we have contains the signature of Howard Hughes." Irving told three reporters in a wide-ranging interview Monday in the offices of McGraw-Hill that the voice he heard in excerpts of last week's news conference, aired on television Sunday night, "was an excellent forgery of what Mr. Hughes must have sounded like some four years ago." Reminded that the two independent voice experts had said tapes of the voice on the telephone matched older recordings known to have been made by Hughes, Irving asked: "How valid could they be if they were compared with a recording 25 years old?" He did not elaborate on what might have altered Hughes voice in recent years. Irving displayed photostatic copies of the endorsements on two checks. Both were signed H. R. Hughes and carried the notation that the originals were deposited in the Swiss Credit Bank in Zurich. The check backs bore the words "Chase Manhattan Bank, N.A.—Endorsement Guaranteed." He also showed the three newsmen a photostatic copy of what he said was the first letter sent to him by Hughes in December 1970. The letter was signed "H. R. Hughes." Some later correspondence was signed "Howard Hughes." Irving said all the handwritten evidence, including a nine-page handwritten letter to McGraw attesting to the authenticity of the book as well as comments and alterations penned in the margins of the 999-page manuscript, had been authenticated by handwriting experts. On the matter of the telephoned interview with seven reporters in Los Angeles, Irving said the voice seemed prepared to expound at some length on specific subjects but appeared at a loss on a number of questions designed to check his identity. In fact, the man on the telephone was presented with 10 such questions. He answered three, which were a matter of public, if obscure, record. He failed to answer one which was a matter of public record. He could not answer six which would have required more intimate knowledge. "Howard Hughes has a very good memory," Irving commented. Irving, who said he has spent a total of about four months away from his family on the Spanish island of Ibiza during the past year, added he has been the target of "oblique pressure" in connection with the Hughes book, including threats against his life. Two men approached his wife Edith Sommer, an artist, in a cafe on Ibiza last December and said they would like to get information from her, Irving said. When she refused, he said, they told her in French: "We're here on a job that involves murder and we really don't want to do it. If you give us the information we want, we won't have to go through with it." In Los Angeles, a spokesman for the Hughes Tool Co., which Hughes owns, noted the insistence by McGraw-Hill that the book is genuine and said: "We really don't know what if any legal action will be taken."

Public Offender Program Finds Jobs

By JANE BENNETT
The Springfield Leader and Press
For The Associated Press
SPRINGFIELD, Mo. (AP) — Four months earlier, the 26-year-old former prison inmate had stepped through the prison gates with $25 in the pocket of a cheap new suit. He had failed, since then, to get a job. Being on parole, he found, was not an insurmountable drawback — not as great a factor in his bad luck as having no skill nor job experience. He considered his plight — his wife pregnant now, no permanent place of residence — and he called the Concentrated Employment Program (CEP) of the Ozarks Area Community Action Corp., Springfield. This man does not exist. But the experiences related in this case are accurate portrayals of the men enrolled in a CEP pilot project — a Public Offender Program designed to train young men in this position, then help them land a job. The effort was launched last July even though five similar programs in other parts of the country had failed. CEP staffers, however, believe their program, funded by the Office of Economic Opportunity and the Department of Labor, is stronger than previous efforts because it is part of the already-proven CEP. Since its inception in 1968, CEP has been training and finding employment for economically disadvantaged Ozark residents. Four CEP staff members are assigned to the Public Offender Program, which begins for each enrollee with an orientation session and extensive testing. Clients are eligible for enrollment the day they are released from prison. From the outset, they receive $10 for each day of the program — which ranges from two weeks to 90 days, depending on the client's progress and his course of instruction. The money is important, says Bob Ranney, counselor, because "the moment a prisoner is released, ADC (Aid to Dependent Children) payments stop, and all he has is $25 gate money." "And $25 doesn't go very far when you are coming home to three, five or, in one case, 11 children ... If he doesn't have a job tomorrow, he's in trouble. Chances are very good he'll commit another criminal offense." Getting jobs for the Public Offender Program clients is not difficult, says Neil Mace, the project's job developer. "We have found most employers are more than eager to work with them if they have a skill," he said. Clients first work for non-profit agencies before being "promoted" to on-the-job training. Besides courses of instruction in carpentry, plumbing, secretarial work and numerous other fields, the clients are indoctrinated in where to seek medical help, food stamps and how to meet other urgent needs of their families. Of 52 clients enrolled in the program through December, their criminal records ranged from convictions on second-degree murder charges to car theft and refusal to serve in the military. Some entered the program with misgivings, but many provided their families and themselves with hopes for an improved future. Of the 52, 46 had continued in the program. Of the other six, four had moved from the area, one was reimprisoned and one had died. One of the bright prospects, released from a federal institution, was employed at a Springfield hospital as a radiological technician. He since has been accepted by a Springfield college and plans to start classes next month, his eyes set on a bachelor of science degree in medical technology. "I think the program has been extremely valuable to me in getting me located in this area and in helping me over the rough spots," he said. "Everybody I've come into contact with has given me a lot more confidence. They've made me breathe a little easier." Another client, whose work experience employment will be as a carpenter's apprentice, said the program helped "by just talking to me and giving me confidence that I could make something of myself ... "They helped with food for the family, with a cheaper place to live and I'm going to work — from then on I think I can make it."

It's one thing having to go to the hospital.
It's another having to go in low spirits.
With one of our spirit lifters, you don't have to.
Because you know you're not going to get saddled with a lot of expenses.
Because you know you're not going to get saddled with a long delay getting in.
And you're not going to get saddled with a bunch of claims to file when you get out.
That's why about one out of three Kansas Citians raise their Blue Cross and Blue Shield Cards high, when they've got to go into the hospital.
It's the toast of the town.
